Janet looked at the remarkable combination with eves turned suddenly grave. "Herman, that cost you more than a table d'hote dinner would, and now how are we going to rook it?"

"Most of it was cooked at the delicatessen shop, and haven't we two stoves, or as good as two stoves. Draw out that oil contraption of yours."

She sprang to ber feet. In a few moments the tea-kettle was holling and the water was ready to pour over the coffee in the little Franch pot which was then left to drip. The cranberry sauce and the rest of the cold dishes were set forth in brave array on the china from the farm. While the soup cooked in the chafing dish, the potatoes and gravy were all heated in a big saucepan over the oil stove, and when the soup was served, the beans took its pince in the chafing dish. And the two young people who had forgotten to be homesick and heartslek, scated themselves at either end of a ridiculously small Thanksgiving dinner table.

At last they sat over their nuts and ra-

At last they sat over their nuts and rarins Last year they had eaten them in front of a blazing fire. Instinctively, Janet gianced toward a radiator in a distant corner of the room. It did not look cheerful, but the steam was escaping merrily from the valve, and that was something to be thankful for. Then she looked back at Herman, she ought to be thankful for him, too. She gave a little sigh of contentment. He looked up quickly. It sounded like old times.

"De you know," she said, wonderingly." Inever supposed this place could be so much like home.

"Home is what people make it—what two people make it," he corrected.

He had stopped picking over the nuts now, and his hands were clasped under the table. He did not want her to see that they were shaking. He had made the plunge so suddenly.

"I don't think this room is just what we ought to have, but we can get a nice little flat of time or four rhoms, and you would not have to stop your work so long as you like it so much, but we would make sure the front room was cheerful

Judging from the bright appearance of the full, round harvest mon last night. Thanksgiving day will dawn bright and clear, with just such a perfect day as Utah can best display. The holiday will be quite generally observed, with dozens of dinners here and there, club, home and public events too numerous to mention. The Country club will have a special golf feature in the morning and a buffet luncheon afterward. At all the clubs for men the luncheon and dinner menus will be elaborate, while the same will be true of the leading hotels. The important evening event will be the supper to be given by Mr and Mrs. R. H. Channing at their home.

Mrs. Thomas Kearns, one of the most gracious of hostesses, received several hundred friends yesterday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock at her beautiful home on South Temple street. It was an ideal day for an afternoon tea and it seemed that all society was present at the first large event at the Kearns home in several months. The decorations were not elaborate, but were beautiful, consisting almost entirely of chrysanthemums in various shades. As the gueste entered the reception hall an immense vase of the yellow flowers greeted the eye, the same color being used in the library. Tail vases of white mums formed a pretty background for the receiving party in the drawing-room, while those of a pinkish-livender hue graced table and mantel in the Moorish room. Red was the color carried out in the dining-room and the effect was beautiful indeed. An exquisite cloth of cluny lace over rich red satin covered the dining-table in the center of which stood a silver bowl of American Beauties. Silver candlesticks, with shades and candles of deep red, stood at either corner, with cut-glass bowls of confections further carrying out the prevailing color. Vases of Beauties and deep red chrysanthemums graced sideboard and cabinets, the Beauties also decorating the punch table. Assisting Mrs. Kearns in receiving her guests were Mrs. Hoyt Sherman Mrs. Exra Thompson, Mrs. Robert J. Glendenning, Mrs. David S. Murray and Miss Wilson. Mrs. Samuel Adams of Denver presided at the punch bowl and was assisted by Miss Elizabeth Cosgriff. During the hours of the reception delightful strains of music floated down from the balcony where a stringed orchestra was stationed. All in all, the tea was one of the most claborate of the season. Ideal hostesses are Mrs. William S. Mc-Cornick and Miss Keogh. They were receiving their many friends at the McCornick mansion on Capitol hill, and all through athe afternoon brightly gowned women of fashion wended their way northward to pass a few moments with these two hostesses. The moment the doors were thrown open to the approaching guest could be heard from within the soft strains of sweet music to the accompaniment of the sum of many voices. The spaceous hallway and all the rooms of the lower floor had been most artistically decorated with a wealth of autumn's prettlest flowers relieved by masses of palms and smilax. The drawing-room, where the hostesses received, was especially effective, and the scene looking from the hall either into the dining-room or parlor was most leagtiful. Mrs. Bird and Miss McCornick assisted, and also assisting was a bevy of Sait Lake's most interesting women. A very large number of invitations had been issued, and, as most of their friends responded in person, the hospitable home was filled until far into the attention, and one and all declared it one of the pleasantest and most successful receptions of the vear. and all declared and receptions of the last evening at the home of Judge and Mrs. William C. Hall. A mound of winter fruits formed the center-table decoration, with vases of yellow and white chrysanthemums at either end. Invited to meet Dr. and Mrs. McEnerny were Senator and Mrs. Thomas Kearns, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Cosgriff, Mrs. Ainsley and Judge Robert N. Buskin.

Dr. and Mrs. William A. McEnery were ruests of honor at an elaborate dinner

Mrs. Thomas Kearns has given up the idea of going to Washington before the holidays and will spend Christmas with her family here.

Salt Lake and Nevada friends will be interested in learning of the marriage of Mrs. Lillian J. Forter and Elton Lee Tipple, both of Eureka. Nev., which took place yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the pariors of the Wilson hotel. Rev. B. M. Högan of Gordon academy performed the ceremony, in the presence of a few intimate friends. After the ceremony a supper was served in the private dining-room at the Wilson. Later Mrand Mrs. Tipple left for a month's visit in St. Louis and Chicago, at the end of which time they will return to Eureka to make their home.

The ninetieth birthday of Mrs Sarah Curtis was the occasion for a family reunion and very enjoyable party last evening at the home of Mrs. Neille Colton on First West street. It was a family party entirely, but the guests numbered more than fifty. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock and, in addition to vases of white chrysanthemuma, with ropes of plumosa, the table was ornamented with an immense birthday cake, with ninety small white candles. All of Mrs. Colton's children now living were there, including Mrs. John Treweek and Mrs. William Husbands of this city, Mrs. B. A. Pearson of Idaho, Mrs. C. C. Conley of Venice, Utah. Edwin Curtis of Logan and H. W. Curtis of Blackfoot. In addition to the sons and daughters, several of the fifty grandchildren and the sixty-six great-grandchildren participated in the entoyable event. great-grandchildren participated in the Naval Engineer Killed Because Refused to Steal Chickens.

NORFOLK, Neb., Nov. 23.-Gus Stock, Jr., aged 23, a naval engineer of Seattle, Wash, was shot and killed by his father early today.

Before the young man dled he made an ante-mortem statement to the effect that his father did the shooting because the son refused to join him in a raid on a neighbor's chickens. The father de-clares the shooting was accidental. Young Stock was visiting his home during the Thanksgiving holidays.
